The users selected flight information is then passable into the generated itinerary. Knowing the precise flight information, including cost, is relevant to budget tracking, airport tips/maps, airline help numbers/pages (when making a travel assistant, if it knows what airline you are flying with it can pull up the right travel documents) and more. Plus it is generally helpful to have your exact flight information directly saved into the itinerary you will be using so that everything is cohesively and neatly in one place.
